ABSTRACT

This document--a survey identifying federal legislation and programs that in some way address the adult learner--is one in a series of four developed to provide a comprehensive overview of the scope of training practices relating to adult learning. It provides a panoramic view of adult learning in response to national priorities based upon patterns of legislation beginning with the Sixty-sixth Congress, 1919-1921, and the resultant federal programs emanating out of the specific acts of Congress since then. Section 1 contains these summary tables: overview of eight federal departments (and twenty-six agencies within them) and seven independent agencies offering programs relating to adult learning; frequency of types of assistance; index of federal programs relating to adult learning by types of assistance; and patterns of congressional activity in enacting legislation relating to adult learning, for which is presented the following information: Congress that enacted the legislation, title of legislation, title of existing federal program, and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) catalog number. In section 2, The Survey, is found the table of results regarding the 195 programs surveyed. Information provided includes (1) title and/or number of legislation, (2) administrating federal agency, (3) OMB Catalog number, (4) existing program, (5) type of assistance offered by the program, (6) dollar allocation for fiscal years 1977, 1978, 1979, and (7) program description. Preface

Because of the scope of training practices relating to adult learning, it has been necessary to develop a series of documents that provides a comprehensive overview. While each document represents a unique aspect of adult learning, the composite encompasses a profile of States' involvement, the political response on a national basis, the programmatic efforts of higher education, the meaning and application of adult learning to training, and a listing of reading materials. The four documents contained with the Overview of Training Practices Incorporating Adult Learning are:

- Current Trends and Practices in Adult Learning
- Selected Federal Legislation and Programs Relating to Adult Learning
- Adult Learning in Inservice Training and Staff Development
- Annotated Bibliography on Adult Learning

Even though the concept of adult learning is by no means a new one, only very recently has it been viewed as an essential aspect of training. The dilemma facing those of us unvolved with providing training services is how to apply adult learning principles to practice, given the sparsity and fragmented nature of the existing information base, especially where training approaches and practices are concerned. With that in mind, the purpose of these overview documents is twofold: (1) to contribute to filling the information gap relating to adult learning in training; and (2) to provide trainers with reference guides to exisiting sources of information.

Within the framework of the Overview of Training Practices Incorporating Adult Learning, we have sought to respond to the following questions.

- What is the adult learning process?
- How can human potential be more fully developed and utilized?

- How can life span training be effectively applied?
- What kind of approaches to adult learning exist? What kind are needed?
- How can empathy training of education personnel be effectively applied to adult learning?
- How can training function as an adult learning process?
- What is the teacher-learner function of the adult in the learning process?

By addressing these questions, it is our hope that along with providing a picture of the current status of adult learning in training practices throughout the nation, trainers will be intrigued enough to seek to expand their knowledge and understanding of how adults learn, and stimulated enough to create new and innovative training approaches that take into account the complexity and diversity of the adult learners who participate.

Preparation of these documents has at some point involved virtually the entire staff of the Adult Learning Potential Institute, to whom I am most grateful. Heartfelt appreciation to Juanita Fletcher, Associate Director, who with tender loving care devoted her time, talent, energy, and commitment to making this document a reality. Special recognition for their good humor, team spirit, tireless determination, and skillful work in producing successive versions of this document goes to Marjorie Lambert, office manager, who kept it (and us as well) all together, and to Jeantta Bruce and Terry Raffelt, research secretaries, for their indomitable spirit and their tenacious perseverance to complete the task at hand.

Introduction

This survey identifies federal legislation and programs that in some way address the adult learner. For this survey, the adult learner is defined as anyone beyond compulsory school age, including the educator-trainer, who is involved in some aspect of federally supported educational services or training. Its purpose is to provide a panoramic view of adult learning in response to our national priorites based upon patterns of legislation beginning with the Sixty-sixth Congress, 1919-1921, and the resultant federal programs emanating out of the specific Acts of Congress since then.

The following information is presented: (1) the existing federal programs within the various government agencies; (2) the legislative authority from which each program emanates; (3) a description of each program; (4) the government agencies and their respective departments in which they are housed; (5) the type of assistance offered by each programs; and (6) the dollar allocation for fiscal years '77, '78, '79. The dollar allocations for fiscal years '78 and '79 are estimated.

The 195 programs in this survey originate from eight departments and seven independent agencies and commissions. Within the eight major departments there are twenty-six agencies which sponsored programs in adult learning. While the majority of the adult learning programs are administered by the various agencies within the former Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), a significant number of programs are run by such federal agencies as the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Foundation for the Arts and Humanities, and the Veterans' Administration.

Through these programs there are sixteen types to assistance offered (see "List of Types of Assistance" p. 1). Project Grants is the most prevalent type offered, numbering 118 of the 195 programs listed. The second most frequently offered assistance is that of formula grants--offered in fifty-one programs. Often, more than one type of assistance is available through a program. Of the 195 programs, fifty-eight offer more than one type of assistance, forty-seven programs offer two types of assistance, five offer three types of assistance, five offer four types of assistance, and one offers five types of assistance.

Of the 195 programs included in this survey, HEW sponsors the majority. Christoffel[1] in comparing federally sponsored programs over a four year period 1972-76 found that HEW support grew substantially over the period, with much of the program growth appearing in the health training area. Christoffel also noted that these programs are widely dispersed among the various federal agencies and Congressional committees.

Of the Congressional sessions, the 93rd and the 94th have enacted more legislation for adult learning than any since the 66th Session. (See Table 4, pp. 9-18 ff). This table, a breakdown of legislative actions, identifies programs by public law number, title and OMB number, according to sessions of Congress.

The programs included were assembled from the 1978 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance compiled by the Office of Management and Budget, (Washington, D. C.: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1978). Research for the list was based on past research sponsored by the Institute for Educational Leadership (Christoffel, "Federal Programs Supporting Life-Long Learning." 1976); and the 1978 Guide to O.E. Programs compiled by the Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

THE SURVEY

Key to Code Listing

The sixteen types of assistance are represented by code letters A through P, and are used in the tables of this survey to designate the specific types of assistance available in each program. They are explained as follows in the Office of Management and Budget's 1979 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

A Formula Grants - Allocations of money to States or their subdivisions in accordance with a distribution formula prescribed by law or administrative regulation, for activities of a continuing nature not confined to a specific project.

B Project Grants - The funding, for fixed or known periods, of specific projects or the delivery of specific services or products without liability for damages for failure to perform. Project grants include fellowships, scholarships, research grants, training grants, traineeships, experimental and demonstration grants, evaluation grants, planning grants, technical assistance grants, survey grants, construction grants, and unsolicited contractual agreements.

C Direct Payments for Specified Use - Financial assistance from the federal government provided directly to individuals, private firms, and other private institutions to encourage or subsidize a particular activity by conditioning the receipt of the assistance on a particular performance by the recipient. This does not include solicited contracts for the procurement of goods and services for the Federal Government.

D Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use - Financial assistance from the federal government provided directly to beneficiaries who satisfy federal eligibility requirements with no restrictions being imposed on the recipient as to how the money is to be spent. Included are payments under retirement, pension, and compensation programs.

E Direct Loans - Financial assistance provided through the lending of federal monies for a specific period of time, with a reasonable expectation of repayment. Such loans may or may not require the payment of interest.

F Guaranteed/Insured Loans - Programs in which the federal government makes an arrangement to indemnify a lender against part or all of any defaults by those responsible for repayment of loans.

G Insurance - Financial assistance provided to assure reimbursement for losses sustained under specified conditions. Coverage may be provided directly by the federal government or through private carriers and may or may not involve the payment of premiums.

H Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods - Programs which provide for the sale, exchange, or donation of federal real property, personal property, commodities, and other goods includ- land, buildings, equipment, food and drugs. This does not include the use of, loan of, or access to federal facilities or property.

I Use of Property, Facilities and Equipment - Programs which provide for the loan of, use of, or access to federal facilities or property wherein the federally owned facilities or property do not remain in the possession of the recipient of the assistance.

J Provision of Specialized Services - Programs which provide federal personnel to directly perform certain tasks for the benefit of communities or individuals. These services may be performed in conjunction with nonfederal personnel, but they involve more than consultation, advice, or counseling.

K Advisory Services and Counseling - Programs which provide federal specialists to consult, advise or counsel communities of individuals including conferences, workships, or personal contacts. This may involve the use of published information, but only in a secondary capacity.

L Dissemination of Technical Information - Programs which provide for the publication and distribution of information or data of a specialized technical nature frequently through clearinghouses or libraries. This does not include conventional public information services designed for general public consumption.

M Training - Programs which provide instructional activities conducted directly by a federal agency for individuals not employed by the federal government.

N Investigation of Complaints - Federal administrative agency activities that are initiated in response to requests, either formal or informal, to examine or investigate claims of violations of federal statutes, policy, or procedure. The origination of such claims must come from outside the federal government.

O Federal Employment - Programs which reflect the government-wide responsibilities of the Office of Personnel Management in the recruitment and hiring of federal civilian agency personnel.

P Research Contracts - Federal assistance designed to support research in situations where the transmission of funds would be better handled through contracts rather than through grants. The research contract is for personal or professional services, or for any service to be rendered by a university, college, hospital, public agency, or nonprofit research institution. The principal purpose of such contracts is to create, develop, or improve products, processes, or methods for public use, or to operate programs benefitting the public.
